Description

A charming 18th century mahogany Gainsborough armchair of neat, well balanced proportions, offering both comfort and classic Georgian elegance, the serpentine top rail above a padded back flanked by padded open arms with acanthus carved curved supports, over a stuff-over seat raised on channel moulded chamfered legs headed by patera and joined by stretchers, ending on brass castors; Recently reupholstered in fine linen by Jane Churchill, the piece presents a thoughtful contrast in tone. The front is finished in a rich, darker blue, while the reverse is upholstered in a slightly lighter shade, creating a subtle visual interest from every angle. Complimentary piping crisply defines the silhouette, enhancing the chair's elegant lines.
