Description

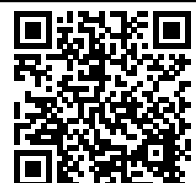

A handsome George III mahogany bow front chest of drawers dating to circa 1800, offering elegant proportions, rich colour, and timeless Georgian appeal. Crafted in beautifully figured mahogany, the chest is of classic bow front form, a design much admired for its graceful lines and refined simplicity. The configuration comprises two short drawers above two long graduated drawers, providing practical storage while maintaining balanced proportions. The drawers retain attractive brass lion mask ring handles, which suit the period character beautifully. Standing on shaped bracket feet, the chest possesses a strong architectural presence while retaining the elegance associated with late Georgian furniture. The top displays lovely figuring and warm patination, with the overall surface having developed the mellow depth and character only genuine age can provide. A wonderfully versatile antique, this chest would work equally well in a bedroom, hallway, sitting room or country house interior, blending seamlessly with both traditional and contemporary schemes. A classic and highly decorative Georgian chest with excellent colour, useful proportions, and enduring appeal.
