Description

Stunning Antique 19th Century Qing Dynasty Elm Altar Table c1850, China A large and authentic Chinese altar table dating to the late Qing dynasty (c.1850–1900), constructed in solid elm hardwood with a deep, naturally worn patina. The long, shallow form features three drawers with original brass bail handles and finely carved floral panels. Traditional mortise-and-tenon construction throughout, with pierced corner spandrels and integral drawer framing. The surface retains layered lacquer with age-related wear, losses and softening consistent with long-term use, adding warmth and character. Structurally sound and visually strong. A highly decorative and versatile piece, ideal as a console, sideboard or statement interior element.
