Description

This antique 20th-century Edwardian desk in oak is a superb piece of fine quality furniture, showcasing exceptional craftsmanship and elegant period design throughout. Very well made and sturdy in construction, the desk features three drawers to the upper section, arranged with one on either side and one centrally placed, all retaining their original knob handles. Beautifully carved with a high level of attention to detail, the desk stands on elegant turned legs united by a supportive stretcher, giving the piece both strength and refined character. The oak displays gorgeous natural grain, rich colour, and beautiful figuring throughout, further highlighting the quality and appeal of this outstanding example. A truly attractive piece that has to be seen in person to be fully appreciated, this Edwardian desk is presented in good condition and would make a perfect addition to any home, study, office, or period interior.
