Description

This antique 20th-century Edwardian sideboard in oak is a superb piece of fine quality furniture, showcasing exceptional craftsmanship and elegant period design throughout. Beautifully carved with a high level of attention to detail, the sideboard has a striking presence and offers both practicality and decorative appeal. The piece features two cupboards, one on either side, each fitted with a single internal shelf for useful storage. To the centre are two drawers, all retaining their original brass dropper handles, while a cleverly concealed hidden drawer positioned between the main drawers adds an unusual and charming feature. Further enhancing the design is a beautifully carved frieze and raised gallery to the top, while the sideboard stands on elegant turned legs united by a supportive stretcher, giving the piece both strength and refined character. The oak displays gorgeous natural grain and rich warm colour throughout, highlighting the outstanding quality of the craftsmanship. Presented in good condition, this highly desirable Edwardian sideboard would make a stunning addition to any dining room, hallway or living space, combining practicality with timeless antiquity.
