Description

A charming William IV mahogany metamorphic child's high chair, dating to the mid-19th century, cleverly designed to convert between a traditional nursery high chair and a lower chair with attached table. Crafted in solid mahogany, the chair features elegant scroll arms, a shaped top rail, and a decorative tablet back splat with carved classical detailing. The seat is upholstered in worn tan leather, adding warmth and character, while the turned and fluted legs provide pleasing architectural detail typical of the period. The metamorphic design reflects the ingenuity of early Victorian nursery furniture, combining practicality with attractive cabinetmaking. A decorative and highly collectible piece, equally suited to period interiors, collectors of childhood antiques, or as an interesting conversation piece. Presented in good antique condition with age-related wear consistent with use and age. Leather seat with expected wear and patination.
