A Lovely Ornate Antique Victorian Silver Plated Spoon Warmer featuring a hinged lid with a shaped cut-out opening, allowing a spoon handle to rest neatly while keeping the bowl covered. The lid is finished with delicate engraved detailing around the edge, giving the piece a refined, traditional look. The body is supported on four nicely detailed lions paw feet with shell-style terminals – circa 1880. * Spoon warmers were typically used to keep serving spoons warm between courses, often by holding hot water inside while the spoon rests through the lid opening.
