A fine quality Edwardian inlaid mahogany armchair of elegant Sheraton revival design, dating to the early 20th century. The chair is beautifully proportioned with a shaped top rail and swept open arms, the frame adorned with delicate satinwood and burr walnut inlaid decoration throughout. The pierced splat back is flanked by slender vertical splats, giving the chair a light and refined appearance, whilst the tapered front legs and gently outswept rear legs further enhance its graceful form. The mahogany has acquired a rich warm colour and attractive patina over the years. The seat is upholstered in a decorative floral needlework panel with braided edging, complementing the refined Edwardian character of the piece.
