A good quality oak refectory dining table in the Jacobean revival taste, constructed in solid oak and standing upon a pair of finely carved baluster supports united by a substantial stretcher base. The rectangular top is beautifully figured with quarter-sawn oak borders framing inset plank-effect panels, displaying attractive grain and a rich warm oak colour throughout. The table extends by way of pull-out end leaves, allowing it to comfortably accommodate additional seating whilst remaining a practical size for everyday use.
