Description

This antique 18th-century Georgian set of six mahogany dining chairs is a beautifully crafted and highly desirable collection, consisting of four single chairs and two matching carvers. Showcasing fine period craftsmanship throughout, the chairs combine elegant proportions with practical comfort and timeless Georgian styling. Each chair is raised on sturdy square legs united by supportive stretchers, ensuring solid construction and stability. The beautifully shaped backs are richly decorated with highly detailed carvings, demonstrating the exceptional attention to detail and quality associated with Georgian furniture. The mahogany displays gorgeous rich grain and warm colour throughout, perfectly complementing the attractive red drop-in seats which add both comfort and traditional character to the set. Presented in good condition with solid joints throughout, these impressive dining chairs would make a stunning addition to any dining room or period interior, combining practicality with classic antique elegance.
