Description

This antique 20th-century Edwardian demi-lune display cabinet is a beautifully crafted piece, showcasing excellent quality and elegant period styling throughout. Featuring a graceful demi-lune shape, the cabinet stands on cabriole legs with striking claw and ball feet, giving it a refined and decorative appearance. The beautifully glazed front opens to reveal two internal glass shelves, ideal for displaying glassware, ornaments, or collectibles, while the subtle carved frieze adds an extra touch of craftsmanship and detail. Complete with key and a raised gallery to the top, the cabinet combines practicality with timeless Edwardian charm. The timber displays gorgeous grain and warm colour throughout, further enhancing the beauty and character of this highly desirable example. Presented in good condition, this elegant display cabinet would make a perfect addition to any home, suited to both traditional and contemporary interiors alike.
