Description

Rare Set of 4 Antique Edwardian Smokers Bow Chairs. An outstanding Set of Edwardian Solid Oak Smoker's Bow Captains Chairs, circa 1910. This exceptional set of four Edwardian smoker's bow captains chairs represents British commercial and domestic seating at its finest during the early twentieth century. Crafted entirely from high-grade solid Oak, these armchairs were traditionally found in the prestigious surroundings of offices, libraries, and boardrooms of the Edwardian and early Interwar period. The design is defined by the sweeping, low-slung horseshoe armrests, which terminate in elegantly out-turned scroll grips. This heavy bow is supported by a series of robust, shaped vertical splats that provide both excellent lumbar support and a striking silhouette. Highlighting the institutional build quality of the set, each chair retains its original, heavy brass strengthening strap securely fixed to the rear of the central back splats - a superb original manufacturing detail designed to reinforce the frame for a lifetime of use. The thick, solid Oak saddle seats are deeply contoured for comfort, showing off the magnificent, dense grain configuration and medullary rays char...
