Description

Antique Edwardian Walnut Lounge Chair. An Elegant Turn of the Century Finely Carved Walnut Armchair. An elegant and finely detailed Edwardian Walnut armchair, dating from the turn of the century, circa 1900. This handsome example represents the high-quality cabinetmaking of the period, drawing on historic design influences to create a comfortable and visually striking occasional chair. The backrest features uprights detailed with crisp vertical incised lines that accentuate the columned stiles, finishing with neatly carved scrolled ears at the top. Positioned below the back cushion is an eye-catching pierced horizontal splat, featuring a central shield-shaped reserve beautifully carved with traditional Edwardian floral and foliate motifs. This decorative carving is paired with structured openwork spindles beneath the padded armrests, which incorporate a central diamond-shaped boss with a carved rosette flanked by delicate fan turnings. The front arm supports are beautifully engineered, featuring distinctive reeded bulbous turnings that give the upper frame a wonderful architectural presence. The chair stands on substantial, sharply turned front legs that perfectly mirror...
