Description

A highly desirable pair of late 19th-century Victorian cast iron conservatory table bases. This pair features an authenticated Victorian Design Registration Diamond (kite mark)—the historical stamp used to patent foundries ironwork and protect it from 19th-century imitators. Complete with original mounting holes along the top flanges, they are ready to support a bespoke marble, slate, or reclaimed timber top. Condition: Structurally sound, incredibly solid, and heavy. No cracks or damage to the ironwork. The surfaces exhibit oxidation, rust, and remnants of old paint.
