Description

This Chair was made for Merryweather & Sons Holloway London. A handsome and elegant Edwardian period mahogany bergère armchair of exceptional quality, has been re-caned. The chair displays a refined neoclassical silhouette, with scrolling arms terminating in finely carved ram's heads, a motif associated with the fashionable designs of the early 19th century. The well-figured mahogany frame is enriched with delicate carved details, raised on turned and fluted front legs with splayed rear supports. The open caned sides and seat lend the chair a light and graceful appearance while providing excellent comfort. Offered with a feather-filled loose cushion, ready to be upholstered in the purchaser's choice of fabric.
