Description

A fine pair of mid-19th-century carved mahogany library armchairs, richly upholstered in deep blue button-tufted velvet. These elegant chairs display beautifully shaped backs with deep buttoning, generous seats, and boldly carved scrolling arms terminating in classical volute scrolls. The seats are supported by finely carved cabriole legs, each detailed with acanthus leaf carving and scrollwork. The frames retain a rich, warm mahogany tone, offering excellent contrast against the original blue velvet upholstery. Comfortable, decorative, and full of character, these chairs are ideal as a statement pair in a living room, bedroom, study, or boutique interior. Key Features Pair antique armchairs Carved mahogany frames with scrolling arms Cabriole legs with acanthus leaf detailing Deep button-tufted blue upholstery Elegant proportions with strong visual presence Condition Presented in good antique condition. The frames are solid and structurally sound. Upholstery shows age-related wear and patina consistent with period seating, adding to their authentic character. Ready for use as they are, or suitable for re-upholstery if desired. Dimensions (each chair) height 93...
