Description

An antique mahogany chest of drawers with a broad rectangular form, bracket feet and a practical seven-drawer arrangement. The front is configured with one long upper drawer above three rows of smaller paired drawers, each fitted with brass swan-neck handles and shaped circular backplates. The mahogany has a deep reddish-brown tone with visible grain, polished surface variation and age-related marks, giving the piece a well-established character without obscuring its useful proportions. The drawer fronts are framed by fine moulded edges, with keyholes to each section and a simple moulded top above. The shaped bracket feet and low apron give the chest a grounded stance, while the multiple drawer sizes make it particularly useful for clothing, linens, documents or household storage. Its width would suit a bedroom, hallway, landing or sitting room, offering the storage capacity of a larger antique chest while retaining a restrained, adaptable form for interiors mixing antique and 20th-century furniture. Provenance: Britain Age: Circa 1830
