Description

An antique mahogany bow-front chest of drawers with a compact, well-balanced form and rich figured timber across the façade. The arrangement follows a practical two-over-two layout, with two short upper drawers above two deeper long drawers, each fitted with round wooden knobs and small brass escutcheons. The curved drawer fronts give the chest a softer architectural profile, while the polished mahogany shows warm reddish-brown tones, darker figuring and surface variation consistent with age. The chest stands on swept bracket feet with a shaped apron below, giving it a light stance regardless of its useful storage capacity. The drawer interiors are in pale secondary timber, with visible dovetail joints indicating traditional cabinet construction. Well suited to bedroom storage, a hallway, landing or sitting room, it offers the practicality of a classic antique chest while retaining enough restraint to sit comfortably alongside 20th-century furniture, leather seating, patterned textiles or a more layered country house interior. Provenance: Britain Age: Circa 1830s – 1850s
