Description

An Edwardian mahogany envelope card table of diminutive scale, the top swivelling and folding open to reveal four counter wells surrounding a central green baize playing surface, set over a single inlaid frieze drawer and raised on four square legs. Built to a particularly low form, this piece offers an exceptionally compact footprint that sits perfectly alongside relaxed lower sitting room seating, doubling its surface area when opened and providing a generous, usable surface for cards and entertaining. Very good antique condition with some surface wear and minor historic veneer repairs to the outer crossbanding. Structurally sound, clean and ready to place. English, circa 1910.
