Description

A beautifully proportioned French cherrywood farmhouse table, dating from the 19th century and full of the gentle warmth and character that make cherry such a sought-after country timber. The top has a lovely mellow tone with natural age marks that speak to decades of use in a rural French kitchen. The table features two drawers, each with its original metal ring pull, offering practical storage for cutlery, linens, or everyday essentials. Standing on simple tapered legs with traditional pegged construction, it has the honest, understated elegance typical of provincial furniture of the period. Generous enough for family dining yet refined enough for a contemporary interior, this is a versatile and timeless piece that works beautifully in kitchens, dining rooms, garden rooms, or as a stylish worktable. The table seats eight people with ease. Delivery can be arranged nationwide, please contact me for further details
