Description

Antique 20th century small Edwardian mule chest in oak, very well made and of good quality. Featuring a large lift-up lid opening to reveal a spacious storage compartment, with two drawers to the base, both retaining their original knob handles, providing additional practical storage. Beautifully decorated with carved linenfold panels to the front, this attractive mule chest showcases the quality craftsmanship and attention to detail associated with the Edwardian period. The combination of decorative carving and functional design makes it a particularly appealing piece. Boasting gorgeous oak grain and rich colour throughout, this is a highly desirable example of compact proportions, making it suitable for a variety of settings within the home. Full of character and charm, it offers both practicality and visual appeal. Presented in very good condition, displaying beautiful grain, colour and carved detail throughout, this charming Edwardian mule chest would make a wonderful addition to any home.
