Description

An Extremely Attractive And Very Fine Quality Late 18th Century Mahogany Hepplewhite Period Georgian Mahogany Open Armchair, Or Salon Chair, The Upholstered Oval Back Set Within Richly Carved Moulded Border, With Elegant Scrolling Arms And Padded Seat, Raised On Extremely Elegant Carved Cabriole Legs To Front And Swept Legs To The Rear. This is an incredibly elegant 18th century armchair, of relatively typical attractive form, however it is much better quality than most and boasts some quite exceptional carved decoration throughout. Originally made as one of many additional side chairs in one of the salons of a house, it will have served many a different purpose throughout the years. Its incredible elegance, when taken in combination with its ability to be so versatile in terms of its use means that it would be perfect as a desk chair, a hall chair, a bedroom side chair and many other uses. The mahogany timbers which have been used in its construction are of good high grade and therefore the carved decoration is crisp and detailed, giving the chair real sophistication and elegance. Overall the condition is very good with no major structural defects to be concerned...
