Description

Paul-Élie Gernez (French, 1888–1948) | Church and Village in a French Landscape A captivating early 20th century oil on panel by Post-Impressionist painter, Paul-Élie Gernez. Known for his evocative depictions of Honfleur and the Normandy coast, Gernez's focus here is on a village scene, dominated by a striking church spire and dome. By allowing the warm grain of the wooden panel to peek through the paint layers in targeted areas, Gernez creates an inherent warmth, grounding the fleeting atmospheric conditions of the French climate. Signed faintly lower right. Provenance: Private Collection; Purchased from Leighton Fine Art, Marlow, Buckinghamshire. Condition: The painting is in very good condition. The frame has minor damage to the front corners, likely where the frame ties or reinforcing pins have slightly pushed through over time. The reverse of the panel bears historical auction/inventory chalk marks. Frame: Height 34cm x Width 46cm. Painting: Height 20cm x Width 32cm. Paul-Élie Gernez (French, 1888–1948) Paul-Élie Gernez was a highly influential French painter, pastellist, and illustrator whose work bridged the gap between traditional Impressionism and the ...
