Description

A fabulous iridescent glass flower vase dating from the turn of the 19th Century. This superb example is of rounded honeycomb form, with a flared rim and applied green border. The body has applied trailed decoration in green and an inverted domed base. Much iridescent Art Nouveau glass was made by the great names of either Loetz or Kralik. This lovely piece is a Martele vase and is by Wilhelm Kralik. An eye catching example, this fine example would make an excellent gift idea, being both practical and decorative. Dimensions below.
