Description

This exquisite 19th-century Louis XV style bureau de dame exemplifies the elegance of the period, featuring intricate marquetry inlay across its entire surface. The desk is crowned with an inset leather top, offering both functionality and sophistication. Elaborate foliate inlays adorn the body, showcasing the artisan's skill and attention to detail. It includes five spacious mahogany-lined drawers, each fitted with delicate rococo-style gilded ormolu mounts that enhance its luxurious appeal. The elegance extends to the gracefully curved cabriole legs, which provide both stability and a touch of fluidity to the design. This piece not only serves as a functional writing desk but also stands as a stunning decorative element, making it a perfect addition to any refined interior space. It embodies the charm and craftsmanship of the Louis XV style, promising to be a treasured heirloom for generations. Batch 87. N/H
