Description

The sofreh of Kamo were mostly woven in a squareish format and used for kneading the dough to make bread or lavash. Here we see a rare example of the dining sofreh - long and narrow format - where the tribes-people would sit around the sofreh, crosslegged, at meal-times and eat the food which was placed upon it. The Kamo weavers created their own designs, taken from the landscape around them and this can be seen here with mountains and rivers depicted. All the colours in the sofreh are from vegetable dyes, made during the first half of the 20th century and it is in excellent condition. Size: 1.35 x 0.56m (4' 5" x 1' 10").
