Description

This stunning Art Deco pendant features a blue morpho butterfly wing under glass and is set in a large oval-shaped silver gallery with a delicate silver filigree frame. It is a perfect example of the Art Deco era, which used bold, bright jewellery and unique materials made into fascinating shapes with superb attention to detail. The colour of the butterfly wings is breathtaking. They feature vivid iridescent shades of blue at different angles as they catch the light. Butterfly wing jewellery has a long history and was popular from the late 1800s to the 1960s. It is gaining popularity again with sustainable butterfly farms worldwide. These pendants were popular souvenirs in the 1920s–30s, often handcrafted, and remain highly collectable today. METAL Silver MEASUREMENTS Measures 5.0cm x 2.1 cm, including the bail Measures 4.0cm x 2.1cm, excluding bail HALLMARKS SWD&CO WEIGHT 5.83 grams CONDITION This Art Deco pendant remains in very good condition.
