Description

This enchanting antique 15ct gold diamond flower bangle, dating to the late Victorian era, is a captivating example of fine craftsmanship and timeless beauty. At its centre, a dazzling mine-cut diamond takes pride of place, surrounded by delicate duos of rose-cut diamonds that form shimmering floral petals. Uniquely, the diamond petal mount rotates, adding an intriguing and dynamic touch to the design. The setting, crafted in silver, beautifully enhances the brilliance of the diamonds, creating a stunning contrast against the rich 15ct gold bangle. Secured with a tab lock fastening, this piece is as practical as it is exquisite, making it a truly treasured addition to any collection. A part of our antique bangle offering.
