Description

This is an antique Cambridge doctor's smoking cabinet. An English, oak and cedar smoker's case, dating to the Edwardian period, circa 1910. Fine cabinetry, with the added interest of being presented to a Cambridge-based doctor. Displays a desirable aged patina and in good order throughout. Superb oak stocks present fine grain interest and an abundance of medullary rays. The whole graced with a delightful warm caramel coloration. Engraved shield cartouche to the top, as presented to a Dr. George A Johnson. Gifted from an appreciative former patient to commemorate his service from 1906 - 1928. Pair of cabinet doors enclose the case, with a pair of unmarked shields to the fascia. Dressed with an inset, brass-lined lock — in working order, key present. Fitted interior offers a trio of cedar lined drawers, dressed with drop handles over pierced batwing backplates. Wider lower drawer arranged in two divisions, one larger. Reverse of the right hand door fitted with a pipe rack, offering space for three pipes. Pipe rack has a diameter of 20cm or three quarter inch for holding smaller examples. This is a fascinating antique smoking cabinet, with a delightful visual appearance and a charm...
