Description

An exceptional late 19th-century French kingwood centre table crafted in the manner of François Linke, one of the most celebrated cabinet makers of the Belle Époque period. Elegantly proportioned and richly decorated, this fine example showcases the outstanding craftsmanship and decorative sophistication associated with the finest Parisian furniture workshops of the late Victorian era. The circular top is beautifully veneered in intricate parquetry and further enhanced by delicate brass banding and an elegant floral marquetry wreath. The warm kingwood veneers display superb colour and depth, creating a striking visual centrepiece from every angle. The frieze is adorned with finely cast gilt-bronze ormolu mounts featuring classical masks and scrolling foliage, while the graceful cabriole legs terminate in decorative sabots. A shaped undertier unites the legs and supports an unusual pierced brass gallery basket, a highly decorative feature often associated with luxury French furniture of this calibre. Whether placed beside a sofa, within a reception room, hallway, bedroom, or sophisticated interior scheme, this versatile table functions equally well as a lamp table, occa...
