Description

An exceptionally elegant antique French Louis XIV style side table, crafted in the manner of the celebrated Parisian ébéniste François Linke, whose furniture remains among the most sought-after and collectible examples of French decorative arts. Beautifully executed in richly figured mahogany, this refined side table displays superb quality throughout, featuring exquisite gilt bronze (ormolu) mounts, finely detailed figural friezes, and a striking rouge marble top enclosed within a pierced brass gallery. The ormolu decoration is particularly impressive, with classical cherubic figures and decorative garlands adorning each frieze, showcasing the exceptional craftsmanship associated with the finest French furniture of the late nineteenth century. The elegant square tapering legs are united by shaped stretchers centred by an ornate gilt bronze finial, creating a graceful architectural silhouette. A highly desirable feature is the original pull-out candle slide, offering both practicality and historical charm. The luxurious rouge marble top provides a beautiful contrast against the warm mahogany tones while enhancing the table's visual presence. Perfect as a lamp table, o...
