Description

Vintage Graduated Cultured Pearl Necklace with 18ct Gold Diamond and Sapphire Clasp c.1950s. A beautiful vintage cultured pearl necklace dating to the 1950s, composed of graduated creamy ivory pearls displaying a lovely soft lustre and recently professionally restrung in June 2026. The necklace is centred by an elegant 18ct gold clasp of refined mid-century design. Set with two calibre-cut sapphires framed by two sparkling diamonds, the clasp provides a wonderful focal point and elevates the necklace beyond a traditional pearl strand. A delicate safety chain offers additional security when worn. The graduated pearls have been individually hand-knotted in the traditional manner, allowing them to drape beautifully around the neck whilst protecting the pearls from wear. Equally suited to bridal wear, formal occasions or everyday elegance, this timeless necklace remains one of the most versatile and enduring pieces of jewellery. Presented in the fitted presentation box illustrated and offered in excellent condition.
