Description

An elegant antique carved mahogany bookcase on stand, dating to circa 1880, beautifully combining refined proportions with exceptional craftsmanship. Constructed from richly figured solid mahogany, this impressive cabinet features a pair of astragal glazed doors showcasing an attractive geometric glazing pattern, allowing books, collections, porcelain or decorative objects to be displayed whilst remaining protected. The warm mahogany has developed a wonderful depth of colour and patina over more than a century, highlighting the outstanding quality of the timber throughout. The upper cabinet is fitted with a series of adjustable shelves, providing versatile storage for a wide variety of collections. It stands upon an elegant open fretwork base featuring finely carved lattice friezes, pierced corner brackets, moulded edges and slender square legs. The restrained architectural cornice, delicate carved detailing and beautifully balanced proportions make this a remarkably versatile piece, equally suited to traditional period interiors or contemporary homes seeking a statement antique of enduring quality. Fine mahogany bookcases of this calibre remain highly sought after by...
