Description

Rare Arts & Crafts Cast Iron Stick Stand by Thomas Jeckyll. A rare and highly sought-after Arts & Crafts cast iron stick stand designed by the celebrated Victorian designer Thomas Jeckyll. Dating from the late 19th century, this exceptional piece is a fine example of Jeckyll's distinctive aesthetic, combining functional design with striking decorative detail. Expertly cast in iron, the stand displays the refined craftsmanship and artistic influence for which Jeckyll is renowned, featuring elegant proportions and characteristic Gothic and Japanese-inspired styling synonymous with the Arts & Crafts movement. Both practical and decorative, it provides ample space for walking sticks, umbrellas or canes, making it an impressive addition to any hallway, country house or period interior. Pieces by Thomas Jeckyll are becoming increasingly scarce, and this rare stick stand represents an excellent opportunity for collectors and enthusiasts of the Arts & Crafts period to acquire an authentic and decorative example by one of the movement's most influential designers. The stand is presented in very good antique condition, with an attractive aged patina commensurate with its age and...
