Description

A substantial 19th century solid oak artist's studio easel, constructed in well-figured oak with a rich, deep patina acquired through years of studio use. Both highly practical and decorative, it is an excellent example of a traditional professional artist's easel. The easel features an adjustable central upright with an adjustable top clamp and a large lower support ledge, operated by its original iron winding handle and rack-and-pinion mechanism. This allows both the painting platform and upper clamp to be adjusted, securely accommodating canvases of varying sizes. Standing on a heavy cruciform base fitted with the original castors, it can be moved around the studio with ease while remaining exceptionally stable in use. The paint-splattered lower shelf is a wonderful testament to its working life and adds great character. A fine example of a traditional 19th century artist's easel, retaining its original mechanism, warm oak colour and honest signs of use. Dimensions Height: 66.5 inches – 169cm adjustable to 101.5 inches – 258cm Width: 22 inches – 56cm Depth: 22.5 inches – 57cm
