Description

This oak two-drawer side table dates from the late 1920s and reflects the ethos, design and construction principles of the Simpsons of Kendal, particularly the work of Hubert Simpson. As the images show, Hubert Simpson (attributed) created a charming and practical table of simple form, using its method of construction as decoration, such as the protruding tenon joints the secure the chamfered stretcher. The original hand-made, ebonised oak knobs are exactly what one would expect from a piece by the youngest member of this remarkable family of craftsmen. Sensitively restored, this appealing side table is ready to be used and enjoyed.
