Description

A pair of Super quality, rare to the market Johann Freidrich Voltz oils on board paintings in original frames. Voltz was a German artist working in the animalier style. Born in 1817. He developed the art at a young age. Now considered one of the best German animal painters. Voltz primarily was a landscape artist until he encountered a Paulius Potter painting of a bull.. He then decided to focus on depicting animals of all kinds. His work references the Dutch style of mood painting. He often treats his animal subjects as still lifes, allowing him to experiment with dramatic sun-filled areas contrasting with areas of cool dark shade. He died in 1886. His works are held in the Berlin museum among others galleries. 100 cm x 50 cm including frames
