Description

A stunning antique solid mahogany sideboard, exceptionally well made and bearing its original maker's plaque from M. D. Miller & Sons, Nottingham a highly desirable detail that adds authenticity and provenance. Crafted from solid mahogany, this is a substantial and very heavy piece, reflecting the quality of traditional British cabinetmaking. The rich deep reddish-brown colour, beautiful grain, and finely polished finish give it an elegant and luxurious presence. The front is beautifully detailed with hand-carved door panels, fluted corner columns, ornate scroll apron work, and classic brass drop handles. The layout offers excellent storage, with two central drawers, a practical open shelf, and two side cupboards. One side also includes a zinc-lined drawer/bin compartment, likely intended originally for cutlery, bottles, coal, or serving-related storage—an unusual and charming period feature. This sideboard would work perfectly in a dining room, hallway, living space, or statement interior, blending traditional craftsmanship with practical storage. About the Maker – M. D.
