Description

Quality Untouched Brown Leather Victorian Wing Armchair This high quality late 19th-century brown leather button back wing armchair is an excellent example of the George III style. Of substantial proportions, it features a well shaped frame with a deep buttoned back and arms, all retaining the original brown leather upholstery. The armchair offers a host of refined details, including elegant scrolling arms, a sprung seat with a loose feather cushion, and close nailed brass stud decoration. It stands on cabriole legs terminating in classic claw-and-ball feet, enhancing its timeless and distinguished appearance. The leather displays a beautiful, untouched colour and rich patination developed over many years, contributing both to its character and its comfort. The seat height is 48 cm. Overall, this armchair is in good, original condition. It combines exceptional comfort with strong decorative presence, and its superb brown hue and patina reflect the quality and care it has received over time. Height 107cm (42.1in) Width 77cm (30.3in) Depth 76cm (29.9in)
