Description

An Important Regency period mahogany, ebonised and parcel gilt partners writing table on monopodia legs of exceptional quality and design, in the manner of George Smith, stamped Chas Norman, Labelled 'Morning Library'. English, Regency period, Circa 1820. Of sophisticated shape, the crescent shaped ended rectangular top is beautifully lined with the original gilt tooled leather writing surface, enclosed by a mahogany cross-banded border and reeded edge. The frieze, containing four finely chosen fiddle-back mahogany drawers, two pairs to opposing sides, each retaining the original gadrooned carved ebonised knob handles. The perimeters having a finely ebonised cockbead, whilst the drawer liners, executed in mahogany, retain the original recessed brass locks which look to have never been removed. Flanking the drawers are bead-moulded ebonised panels which conform to either end above a reeded mould. Raised on four boldly designed and imposing, crisply carved, ebonised and parcel gilt leopard monopodia supports in wonderful original waxed condition. Each of the Egyptian leopards' masks above a bold breast decorated with carved gilt anthemion and guilloche motifs, finis...
