Description

A pair of fine quality late 19th century (circa 1900) French Empire style mahogany console tables with unusual marble tops, stamped 'Krieger Paris'. This pair of tables consist of original rectangular marble tops leading down to two drawers each with decorative gilt metal escutcheon with key, with small gilt metal patera to the centre and larger paterae to either side, the drawers with manufacturers stamp and metal label. This leads down to two turned front supports of column design with gilt metal mounts to the top and bottom. The recessed panelled backs with four gilt metal paterae and a moulded edge with gilt metal anthemion mounts to the outer edges, the front supports and back supported by a shelf with a moulded edge with four turned feet below, to the reverse of both tables manufacturers stamp 'Krieger Paris 74 Faubourg-Saint-Antoine 74'. Maison Krieger (1826-1910) was established in 1826 by brothers Antoine and Nicolas Krieger in Paris, the name changing many times over the years with different family members joining the company and in 1880 was based at 74 Rue du Faubourg Saint-Antoine. They were one of the largest furniture manufacturers in Paris in the late ...
