Description

A charming and substantial 18th century cherrywood two-part cupboard of exceptional colour and rich, warm patina. The moulded serpentine cornice sits above a pair of shaped panel doors opening to a spacious upper cupboard, standing on a matching enclosed base fitted with a further pair of shaped panel doors, providing generous storage throughout. Beautifully crafted with elegant moulded panels, iron escutcheons and handles, a shaped apron, and raised on carved front feet, this impressive country piece displays the character and craftsmanship associated with the finest provincial furniture of the period. A superb example of 18th century cherrywood furniture, offering outstanding decorative appeal and practical storage, with excellent colour and authentic period character.
