Description

Antique 18th century Georgian set of six mahogany dining chairs, very well made and of good quality. Comprising six single chairs, this elegant set showcases the refined craftsmanship and timeless styling associated with the Georgian period. Each chair is beautifully inlaid, particularly to the upper backrests, with a variety of contrasting woods that enhance their decorative appeal and highlight the exceptional quality of the workmanship. The removable drop-in seats are upholstered in an attractive olive-coloured fabric, offering both comfort and practicality. Standing on graceful tapered legs united by supporting stretchers, these chairs are of solid construction and boast gorgeous mahogany grain and rich colour throughout. Their elegant proportions, quality materials and intricate inlay make them a highly desirable and increasingly difficult-to-find set. Presented in good condition, with solid frames and no unwanted movement, this superb suite of Georgian dining chairs displays beautiful grain, colour and craftsmanship throughout and would make a wonderful addition to any dining room and a perfect addition to any home.
