Description

An exceptional pair of antique French Rouge Royal marble and gilt bronze mounted urn lamps, dating to circa 1880 and exemplifying the luxurious decorative arts of nineteenth-century France. Beautifully crafted in richly coloured Rouge Royal marble displaying spectacular natural veining throughout, each urn is lavishly adorned with finely cast gilt bronze mounts featuring scrolling foliate handles, trailing ivy garlands and acanthus leaf decoration. The combination of vibrant marble and warm gilded bronze creates a striking visual contrast that immediately commands attention. Originally created as decorative urns, these impressive pieces have since been professionally mounted as table lamps, allowing them to function as both practical lighting and highly decorative works of art. Their elegant proportions and classical design make them equally suited to traditional interiors, luxury hotels, country houses and sophisticated contemporary settings. French marble and ormolu-mounted decorative objects of this quality continue to attract strong interest from collectors, interior designers and discerning buyers worldwide. The exceptional quality of the bronze casting, together ...
