Description

Edwardian milliner & draper's shop sign, hand-painted on pine with bold lettering and rich patina - A rare survivor of early 20th-century commercial craft. Why We Love This ... Original shop signs have a presence and immediacy that modern decorative pieces simply can't replicate. This Edwardian milliner and draper's sign is especially evocative - bold, confident lettering, beautifully balanced composition, and that unmistakable patina earned through decades of honest commercial life. It's a piece that speaks directly of its trade: the world of fabrics, trims, hats, ribbons and the skilled hands that shaped them. As a companion to the cotton reel display tree, it feels like a perfect echo - two objects from the same universe of making, mending and millinery.
