Description

Fine early Georgian George II tray-top silver table in rare Cuban mahogany, circa 1727–1760, with cabriole legs, slipper feet and a three-sided drawer - a beautifully balanced, increasingly scarce example of early 18th-century craftsmanship. Why We Love This ... Early Georgian tray-top tables have a presence that later examples rarely achieve. This one feels particularly honest and well balanced — not over-polished, but carefully looked after. The combination of crisp cabriole legs, rich surface colour, and subtle detailing makes it a genuinely attractive and highly usable piece.
