Description

Elegant late 18th-century Sheraton-influenced mahogany Pembroke table with partridge-wood cross-banding, original handles, bone escutcheon and castors; superb colour, scale and craftsmanship - a refined and highly versatile Georgian piece. Why We Love This ... A beautifully executed late 18th-century Pembroke table in rich mahogany, retaining its original handles, castors and bone escutcheon. The partridge-wood cross-banding adds a refined decorative edge, while the table's scale, colour and surface are everything we look for in a Georgian piece. Elegant, versatile and wonderfully proportioned - a classic example of Sheraton-era design.
