Description

Dutch Walnut Veneered Bookcase with Glazed Upper Cabinet, Circa 1920s A handsome early 20th-century Dutch bookcase in walnut veneer, featuring a glazed display cabinet above and a bombe-shaped serpentine-fronted base with drawers — elegant, compact, and full of character. Description A beautifully proportioned Dutch bookcase dating to the 1920s, crafted with a warm walnut veneer that brings depth and richness to its silhouette. The upper section features glazed doors, ideal for displaying books, ceramics, or treasured decorative pieces while keeping them protected. Below, the bombe-shaped base offers a wonderfully sculptural presence, with serpentine-fronted drawers that soften the form and add a touch of Baroque revival influence. The combination of the glazed top and curvaceous lower section creates a piece that is both practical and decorative — a classic example of early 20th-century Dutch craftsmanship. Compact in footprint yet generous in storage, this bookcase sits comfortably in living rooms, studies, hallways, or bedrooms, adding warmth and European charm to any interior. Details Period: Circa 1920s Origin: The Netherlands Material: Walnut veneer over timber Internal Ref: WA194
