Description

An exceptionally elegant antique Edwardian satinwood display cabinet on stand by the renowned London cabinet makers Hampton & Sons, dating to circa 1900. Crafted from beautifully figured satinwood of outstanding colour and quality, this refined cabinet exemplifies the sophistication and craftsmanship associated with one of England's most respected furniture manufacturers. The cabinet is enriched throughout with exquisite hand-painted decoration, including floral swags, classical garlands and a charming central panel depicting dancing maidens in a romantic landscape setting. The upper section features glazed display doors flanked by glazed sides, creating a light and airy showcase for porcelain, silver, objets d'art or fine collections. Internally, the cabinet retains its original luxurious silk-lined interior and glass shelving, providing a wonderfully atmospheric backdrop for display. Raised upon a separate stand with elegant fluted legs and a full-width drawer, the piece displays strong neoclassical influence throughout, enhanced by finely executed painted ornament and restrained architectural detailing. Furniture bearing the Hampton & Sons name continues to be high...
