Description

18th-Century Georgian Oak Joint Stool Short Description A simple 18th-century Georgian provincial joint stool in oak with turned legs and stretcher base — rich colour and honest craftsmanship. Full Description A fine Georgian provincial joint stool dating from the 18th century, crafted in solid oak with a rectangular top and turned legs joined by stretchers. The stool displays the restrained elegance typical of rural English furniture of the period, with well-balanced proportions and a warm, mellow patina. The oak has developed a rich colour through age and use, highlighting the natural grain and character of the timber. A versatile piece that embodies the simplicity and integrity of Georgian craftsmanship — equally suited as a side table, occasional seat, or decorative accent. Details Period: 18th century Origin: England Material: Oak Condition: Excellent antique condition with age-related wear consistent with use Provenance: English private collection Styling Notes Perfect for adding warmth and authenticity to a country or period interior. Its understated form and rich patina make it a timeless accent beside a fireside or armchair. Delivery Delivery is not incl...
